NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

France Pays Sorrowful Homage at Bier of Its Great Marshal.

MOST of the world shares with France its great sorrow in the loss of its distinguished soldier, Marshal Ferdinand Foch, generalissimo of all the allied armies during the World war, who died Wednesday in Paris. Marshal Foch was seventy-eight years of age and had been ill for nearly three months. He suffered an attack of influenza which developed into a pulmonary trouble and was followed by complications of the kidneys. A resultant heart weakness claimed him.

Not since Napoleon's body was brought back from St. Helena in 1840 has France witnessed a funeral of such surpassing pomp as that arranged under direction of the French chamber of deputies to honor the dead marshal. For twenty-four hours previous to the funeral, which was held on the 20th, the body lay in state under the Arc de Triomphe, near the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. The high and low, the rich and poor, in continuous procession passed by the bier to pay homage to France's greatest hero of modern times.

Gen. John J. Pershing, who was one of the marshal's most intimate associates and supporters during the war and who is recovering in Paris from influenza, expected to go to the Riviera for recuperation, but canceled his departure to attend the funeral and act as one of the honorary pallbearers.

Honors seldom paid to any one but the most distinguished American soldiers was the tribute of the United States army to the memory of Marshal Foch. General Pershing was designated to represent the army at the funeral in Paris. On the day of the funeral, by orders of the War department, the flag at every military post and station was displayed at half mast and salute of twenty-one guns was fired at regular intervals during the day.

President Hoover, immediately on learning of the great marshal's death, dispatched a message to the French government expressing the sorrow of the American people for the people of France over the loss of a great national hero. Warm tribute to the military genius and fine human qualities of Marshal Foch were paid by other high officials of the government.

When Marshal Foch, with sure grasp, remarkable strategy, and rare power of coordination, was directing the allied effort which finally broke the German hosts, he was in command of more men than anyone had led in the history of the world. Marshal Foch first attracted world attention at the first battle of the Marne, when he sent the decisive message to his chief, Marshal Joffre, "My left and right wings are shattered. I shall attack with my center." He did and broke up the German offensive and forced a retreat.

It was this success, with its manifestations of bulldog determination to win even in defeat, that singled him out as the man for supreme leadership when unified command of all the allied armies was decided upon in the spring of 1918.

So it comes that almost on the eleventh anniversary of the greatest moment of his career, when to him passed command of a military machine more vast than any the world had ever dreamed of, Foch, hero of the first Marne, has breathed his last.

In 1921 Marshal Foch came to this country as a guest of the American Legion. He covered 50,000 miles and his journey led him through the Eastern states, the wheat fields of the Middle West, the vast plains of Texas, and the plantations in the South. His trip was crowned in the national convention of the Legion at Kansas City.

Hundreds of thousands of Legionnaires and citizens turned out to all principal cities to see and hear Marshal Foch. His personal aide was Francis Drake, an officer of the A. E. F. and a Legionnaire. A flotilla of destroyers met the French liner Paris, and as she steamed in the Narrows on October 28. The marshal was greeted by a 19 gun salute. New York gave him one of its typically famous receptions.

THE Mexican revolution is rapidly petering out. The expected great battle at Torreon failed to materialize when the rebels evacuated the place and started their retreat northward. At last accounts they were still going.

Gen. Jesus M. Aguirre, rebel leader in Vera Cruz, was captured at Agua Caliente, following a battle in which many were killed on both sides. He was promptly court-martialed and executed. President Portes Gil ordered photographs taken of General Aguirre before and after execution. These will be used to prove to the public that Aguirre has really been executed.

The government continues to meet its pay rolls despite the mounting costs of war expenses.

Future revolutions in Mexico must count with the radio and the broadcasting stations, officials say. The desertions, the discontent, and the quarrels of the rival rebel leaders were made known to the Mexican people almost as soon as they were known in the rebel camps, and this has had a powerful effect on the popular mind.

BIDS for the construction of ten of the fifteen cruisers authorized by the naval building bill passed by the last congress are to be asked by Secretary of the Navy Adams. Designs of the new cruisers have been completed and all that now remains is for the Navy department to set forth the terms under which the bids will be asked. The new vessels are to be the fastest and most powerful cruisers of their class ever constructed in the United States. Three of the vessels will be built in government yards and the balance in private establishments. Five ships are to be started this year and five the latter part of 1930.

PRESIDENT HOOVER has already found two places convenient to Washington where he can indulge in his favorite sport of fishing whenever opportunity affords. Two places within short distances of the capital have been placed at his disposal. One of these is the historic Catoctin Manor estate at Catoctin, Md. The second fishing place selected is in Shenandoah National park, Virginia. A new game lodge to be erected near the head waters of the Rapidan river in the Blue Ridge mountains will be occupied by the President during his fishing trips in that section.

SENATOR BORAH has announced his determination to oppose American entrance into the World court when the revised protocol is sent to the senate in December.

In a statement issued in Washington last week, Senator Borah attacked the World court as representing merely the United States as representative of the League of Nations and denounced its authority to pass advisory opinions on international disputes of the League. He predicted that the World court would never function as a truly great international tribunal, even if it discarded the practice of issuing advisory opinions. The new World court, the senator contended, does not afford the United States protection against advisory opinions.

OFFICIAL inquiry has failed to fix the blame for the accident in which 14 passengers were killed when a giant trimotored Ford passenger plane crashed at Newark, N. J. The accident, the worst in heavier airplane aviation in this country, occurred when the plane, loaded with slight-seeming passengers, fighting a gale with disabled engines, crashed into an iron freight car and was cut in two.

GOV. HENRY S. JOHNSTON has been removed from the office of governor of Oklahoma by the state senate court of impeachment and that body found him guilty of a charge of general incompetency, preferred by the house of representatives. He was exonerated on nine other charges brought by the house. The senate vote came as a dramatic climax to more than two years of political turbulence, which reached the impeachment pitch in 1927. At that time, however, Johnston succeeded in dispersing hostile legislators by court action after they had sought to convene on their own call.

LEGISLATION necessary to transfer responsibility for prohibition enforcement from the Treasury department to the Department of Justice, as recommended by President Hoover in his inaugural address, is in course of preparation, according to Attorney General Mitchell. However, it is unlikely, in view of the difficulty of the problem and as well as the President's desire to confine the forthcoming special session of congress to far-reaching and tariff revision, that the dry reorganization will be submitted to congress until the next regular session convenes in December.

STRENGTHENING of the enforcement of all laws, with special emphasis on none, is the announced policy of the Hoover administration. No special law, such as the Volstead act, is to be singled out for special attention. The President's expressed hope is to obtain better law enforcement and a lessening of crime through judicial reforms, reorganization of enforcement machinery where necessary, and the building up of public respect for all laws. The President's purpose in arranging for the appointment of a law enforcement investigating commission is to determine the facts and then work out an enforcement system which will result in a substantial permanent advance toward the enforcement of all laws.

FLOODS again are taking their heavy spring toll in lives and property in various sections of the country. The Mississippi at Quincy, Ill., has reached the highest mark in 25 years. Levees along a 50-mile front were battered by the angry waters and patrols were kept on duty night and day strengthening the danger points with sand bags. Several towns and smaller communities in Illinois are under water and thousands are homeless. The property loss cannot yet be estimated.

Two breaks in the levee near Quincy flooded 20,000 acres of farming land. In Alabama and Georgia incalculable damage has been done to property by swollen rivers and there has been considerable loss of life. Many towns and rich farming sections have been inundated and highways have been made impassable. Sections of Florida have also suffered heavily. Food and other supplies are being delivered by aviators on a regular schedule.

In sections where the waters have abated the work of rehabilitation has already commenced. Residents of the flooded towns were returning to their homes inoculated against disease, prepared to restore their ruined buildings.

DRASTIC reductions in penalties for violations of the Ontario liquor control act were announced at Toronto when the government introduced surprise amendments to its liquor legislation. Fines and terms of imprisonment mandatory upon conviction are cut in half. To United States visitors the most important change is prohibition of taking liquor purchased in Ontario outside the province. Visitors who legally purchase liquor there must consume it before they leave Ontario if they wish to remain within the law of the province. A man caught on a train bound for the United States with liquor in his possession will be liable to a fine of $20 and two months in jail for having liquor in an illegal place. It was explained that this was not a blow aimed at rum-running, but at hip-running.

THE problem aroused by the seizure of a truck load of liquor consigned to the Chinese legation in Washington is being solved by plans under course of formulation by the administration and police officials. Under the new system foreign officials enjoying diplomatic immunity from arrest will be permitted to transport liquor from Baltimore to Washington without disturbance from prohibition officers or the police if a duly accredited embassy or legation official rides the truck with the wet cargo.

Diplomats dealing to transport a consignment of wines and whiskies from Baltimore to Washington will be furnished credentials informing all who may inquire that the cargo is diplomatic liquor and, as such, enjoys immunity from seizure.

WHAT IT COSTS TO GOVERN US

By PROF. M. H. HUNTER
Dept. of Economics, Univ. of Illinois

Business and Occupation Taxes
SHOWS a tax levied upon business and occupations. Some use of such a tax, especially with the concern as to ability to pay, is found in many states and municipalities. The purpose of the levy is either regulatory, or to receive revenue, or both.

The use of license payments is much more extensive in the southern states than elsewhere, although their use in other states has been increasing rapidly in recent years. The early and extensive development in the South can be explained by the activities of the owners of large plantations because of their desire to have the tax burden on property reduced to a minimum.

Any southern state might be chosen to illustrate the extent to which license payments have been applied to businesses and occupations. Some of those found in Georgia will serve to indicate the condition.

The annual license upon an adjustment bureau is $50 for each employee; auctioneers, $50 to $200, depending on kind of goods sold; grocers, $5 to $50, depending on size of city; billiard tables, each, $50; barber shop, $5 per chair; bath, $50; brokers, $25 to $250, depending on nature of business; restaurants, $5 to $100, depending on size of city.

The license on retailers varies from $5 to $200, depending mostly on the nature of the business, although the size of the city is sometimes considered. Electrical contractors pay an annual license of $10; landrivers, $25 to $100, depending on population; packing houses, $25 to $50, depending on population; peddlers, $50 in each county; skating rinks, $25 to $100; undertakers, $10 to $50.

A long list of professional licenses is also found. The annual payments vary from $5 for book agents and horticulturists to $200 in each county for bond makers. Most practitioners, such as lawyers, dentists, physicians, and public accountants, must pay a license of $15 annually.

In addition to the above, there are a large number of miscellaneous license requirements. The payment required of a circus is from $100 to $200 a day, depending upon population of city; for each grand opera concert in cities of less than 100,000 population, the license is $1,000; in larger cities, $2,500. Moving is also taxed, the fee varying from $250 to $1,000 a month.

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois

THE PARENTS' POINT OF VIEW

I presume had I been a parent I should have been as blind to the faults of my children as are the parents of the children with whom I have to deal. I listen silently, often with the object of the eulogy sitting before me, to the recital of the catalogue of virtues which fond parents attribute to their offspring, and did I believe half of what is told me, there would be more saints in the world, more scholars, more geniuses, more men whose characters approach perfection than I feel that there are.

Brown has been detected by his instructor in the act of copying from a neighbor. The evidence when the two papers are compared is unmistakable, but the boy denies the charge, and so informs his father. "My son has never told a lie in his life," the father writes me, "and when he says that the paper he handed in is entirely his, I believe him absolutely."

Now young Brown is nineteen, and the situations into which a youth may stumble during nineteen years are varied. The times when expediency or safety suggests a slight twist or evasion of the truth are many. Evasion makes it seem wiser often not to tell quite all the truth, and to find a youth of nineteen who has never unconsciously or with design taken refuge in one or another of these subtleties is at least unlikely.

"When did you get in last night?" Brown's mother asked. Brown is supposed to be in by ten.

"A little after ten," he replies. It was, in fact, one o'clock, but it seemed wiser if a little less truthful to say so. I think I was a pretty truthful boy, but to say that up to nineteen I had always stuck to the exact truth would be palpable exaggeration.

The parents' point of view is often distorted.

Chinese Superstition

There are towers in Shanghai where men watch for fires. When one is discovered the fire-bell is rung. When the old custom house was built a large clock was placed in its tower. For some weeks after this clock began to strike the hours there were very few if any fires.

The Chinese said it was because the fire-god thought that every time the clock struck there was a fire announced, so he could rest without helping. All these things seem ridiculous to us but are very real to the Chinese.

New York's Early Days

An article published in the Christian Advocate says: "At the beginning of the Nineteenth century the commercial metropolis of the United States occupied only the lower end of Manhattan Island, what is now known as the tip of the island. The actual measurements of the city proper are given as three miles in length from the Battery to Fourteenth street, one and a half miles in width and eight miles in circumference."

Man and Fish

A fish's fear of man is born, a Chicago Institute's bulletin suggests, by the fact that he approaches from above a direction from which the fish has learned to expect attack by birds or other enemies. When a man wades on the ocean floor in a dress, fish large and small display the greatest curiosity. Even the fierce barracuda, after peering the diver in friendly and inquisitive fashion, must be pushed out of the way and goes without showing the slightest resentment. San Francisco Chronicle

London's Wall Street

Longbair street, the principal bank quarter of London takes its name from the Lombards, Italian goldsmiths and money lenders who settled there in the twelfth century. At that time they were commonly called "long beads" and the thoroughfare was called Longbair and Longbair. A century later it was called Longbair—meaning "long brook"—and this title is still maintained for the place where it was situated.

Breathless

The teacher was telling a story to the kindergarten and interest was intense.

"So that night the wicked red fox came and stole a chicken. The next night he came and stole another chicken. And the next night he came and stole another chicken. And—dramatic pause—"what do you suppose happened the next night?" "Oh, teacher!" panted Peter. "Did he get another chicken?"

The TOWN DOCTOR

(The Doctor of Towns)
SAYS

SELLING A TOWN IS LIKE SELLING ANYTHING ELSE

If you are a thinking resident of the place where you live, you desire the world to get sold on your town.

Before you can get sold on it yourself, and before you can sell it to others to anywhere near maximum degree, there is a certain amount of study and analysis necessary. That is, it is necessary if known ethics of good business are adhered to. Sad but true, however, this is altogether too seldom done in things civic.

The first question to be answered is, "Is there a market—a demand for it?"

The demand for good, live, wide-awake communities greatly exceeds the supply. Every day people are asking, "Where is there a good town in which to locate?"—for any one of a thousand reasons. Twenty percent of your motor traffic is in the market for, or can be sold a new location. Men at the heads of large industrial concerns, people in all walks of life, in fact, everyone is looking for good towns—good communities.

Few people realize the extent to which industry and business go to find good towns. There are in Chicago alone dozens of corporations, concerns and firms who have special departments to do nothing else but find out if a town is suitable for the purpose they have in mind. With some it is for location of a branch factory, employing hundreds; others for a distributing point, requiring twelve to fifty; others for place of residence for the representative and family who handles the company business in that area, and there are others who, looking into the future, just want to know.

And this is your opportunity IF your town is in position to take advantage of it.

The second question: "Is your town marketable—suitable for sale, as it is?"

To make it marketable, the bugs must be eliminated—the monkey wrenches fished out of the machinery, so that when sold, it will stay sold.

What business man is there that doesn't know what happens to any concern that places a product or service in the hands of the American public that, when sold, doesn't stay sold? Every thinking man knows that it spells disaster; but in the face of that very knowledge, they expect their town to "go over" with the same American public, without eliminating those things that are known to provoke dissatisfaction, create loss of interest, and unwell the customer.

The first bug in the machinery of most communities is that of "contemptuous familiarity." You walk down the street and look at hundreds of things that repel other people, but you do not see them. You go to your store or office and there are things that others abhor, but you fail to recognize them because you are so familiar with them. At the same time, above you, below you, and on every side of you, there are "acres of diamonds that have never been mined." It is a matter of being "so close to the picture that you can't see the frame."

Look around you—put yourself in the position of a stranger and look for the things that would unwell you. See your community as others see it—think about it—talk to your neighbor about it and then do something to eliminate those things that repel, and "get behind and push" those things that invite.

Defeat Had Good Result

Kentucky history records the "Battle of the Blue Licks" as the bloodiest engagement between the whites and the Indians of the pioneer days. It was in this battle of August 10, 1782, that 550 Shawnee Indians, led by British and Canadian and the notorious renegade Simon Girty, ambushed 200 comrades of Daniel Boone and slew and scalped more than half of them including Boone's youngest son, Israel. Recent dedication of two memorials by Kentucky called attention to the fact that this battle, while a great disaster, yet aroused the pioneers to the danger of their extermination west of the Alleghenies. Reorganization of the whites followed and with reinforcements and supplies from Virginia the Indians ultimately were driven beyond the Ohio river, never to return. Detroit News.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY

The Senior class of Gould Academy presented the annual class play on Wednesday evening, to a large and appreciative audience.

The play selected was "Anne, What's Her Name?", a three act mystery comedy which was unlike anything heretofore presented by the school. It was full of startling and amusing situations which kept the audience guessing from the gruesome prelude to the final drop of the curtain.

To give special mention to any one of the cast would seem unjust since each played his or her particular role so admirably. Every little detail was so accurately carried out that the performance might have been a credit to professionals. Seldom has a Bethel audience seen a local play more effectively staged than was the one of these young amateurs and too much credit cannot be given to their director, Miss Ellen Cottrell.

The specialties were good and well rendered. Most acceptable music was furnished by Albert Bean. Every one including the business manager and property men cooperated in a manner highly commendable to the class and the net proceeds of $140 was most gratifying. All in all, the Senior Class play of 1929 was a pronounced success.

The following is the cast:

Tony Wheat,	Donald Allen
Burke,	Jay Willard
Marjorie,	Eather Holt
Ann Julia,	Margaret Carter
Barbara,	Dorothy Edwards
Mooney,	Adelaide Bean
Willie,	Elton Glover

How Weak Nervous Women Grow Stronger

Feel Better, Look Younger and Have Steadier Nerves

If you only knew—you rindown, anemic, women—who are dragging yourself around on your "nerves"—what a wonderful increase in strength and health Tanlac will give you, you wouldn't hesitate a moment about going to your druggist and getting a big bottle of this splendid medicine.

Mrs. Addie Ham, of 11 No. Pine St., Dover, N. H., says: "I was run down, thin and anemic. My housework was a burden. Now my appetite has improved so that I can eat anything—three hearty meals a day. My housework is easy and I never feel nervous."

Tanlac is as free from harmful drugs as the water you drink—only Nature's own medicinal tonic herbs. Druggists know this and for the past 20 years have recommended it to men and women who need a quick "pick up" that will put them on their feet and give them a new interest in life.

So confident are the makers of Tanlac that if you are not helped by it, you get your money back on request.

Good Printing Is The Outward Evidence Of Good Taste

The things that make the difference between good printing and poor printing printing are the little things--the proper selection of paper, type faces in harmony with each other and with the business in which it is to be used, proper spacing, the right kind and amount of ink, correct composition, careful make-ready, good presswork. These are the little things that make a big difference in printed matter --the little things that decide whether it is good, excellent or ordinary.

We are prepared to supply you with good printing. Our equipment is the best produced for the purpose and we have made a life study of our work.

We guarantee to give satisfaction in every particular.

THE STORY

In Kluwiltz, January, with its drifting winds and frequent fairs, in a hard month on travelers now snow fills the beaten and trails and buries the traps and bit the bearers are less on the move of rabbit and wood mouse the chase delays them forth fly be a busy month for

"By golly, better right!" muttered a white boy, convinced by his partner's woodcraft. "He had to go that way, and it had to be this morning. It showed on him here last night. The sled's packed down the snow. So, through the morning, the woods looked down the lake. At noon, though an opening in the timber

A Well Prepared Advertisement

An advertisement should do four things. It should attract attention, interest, create desire and sell.

If an advertisement is well written and well gotten up it will do this.

Every merchant who has spent his life in his business can write a good advertisement if he will give it the necessary time and thought, and if he will write as though he had his customer before him telling him of the good points of his merchandise.

An advertisement that is poorly or hastily written will not bring results, no matter how large the circulation of the medium in which it is run. On the other hand, a well written advertisement will bring results if only four people read it.

EVERYBODY READS THE CLASSIFIED ADS

Your advertisements in this column will bring big returns. Thousands of people have proved this.
